SCOTTSDALE, Ariz., Dec. XX, 2018 — David Crozier, an affiliate agent with the Scottsdale Carefree office of Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage, has been named the 2018 Realtor of the Year by the Scottsdale Association of REALTORS®. Crozier has served on the Association’s REALTORS® of Arizona Political Action (RAPAC) Committee for five years.

“As chair in the RAPAC Committee, we created an outstanding group of amazing volunteers, developed a solid plan and went out to change the culture of our membership organization,” said Crozier. “We introduced innovative techniques that have increased member participation from 8 percent to more than 31 percent and total monies raised have grown to more than $130,000 this year. As a result of our combined efforts, our association has become the most successful major association in the state in terms of participation and dollars raised.”

Rebecca Grossman, CEO of the Scottsdale Association of Realtors, said: “Volunteers like David, help us be the best that we can be. His leadership has paved the way for others to continue the success he had during his years as chair and I am very proud that he was chosen as our Realtor of the Year.”

The mission of RAPAC in Arizona, and the national Realtor Party, is to raise funds from Realtors to support political candidates who support homeowners, homeownership, and the rights of Realtors as small business owners. In Arizona, the Realtor Party in 2018 worked to pass Proposition 126, which amended the State Constitution to prevent governments from charging a tax on professional service fees.

Prior to working in real estate, Crozier worked as staff or consultant for the American Red Cross, Children's National Medical Center in Washington, DC, Petsmart Charities and a variety of other charitable organizations. He earned his real estate license in 2004 and affiliated with Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage in 2009. As a real estate agent, he helps home sellers and buyers in Scottsdale, Cave Creek, Carefree and the surrounding areas. Active in his community, he serves as a trustee for the RAPAC committee and as an AAR board member.

Crozier lives in Cave Creek, Arizona.
